ANGEL VIEW/ROTARY CLUB OF PALM SPRINGS 9TH ANNUAL PROM!

For the past nine years, the Rotary Club of Palm Springs has sponsored a special prom party for Angel View clients at the Demuth Community Center. “The Angel View Prom has become our Rotary Club’s signature and most rewarding event,” says Judy Bronstein, Rotary Club of Palm Springs Angel View Prom Committee Chair. “When we introduce new members of our club to this event, they are blown away when they see the joy and happiness it brings to the clients of Angel View.”

HELPING CHILDREN AND ADULTS WITH DISABILITIES MAXIMIZE THEIR POTENTIAL
www.angelview.org

Angel View provides compassionate care to children and adults with disabilities through our 24-hour residential nursing care program, Day Program and Outreach services. For nearly 60 years, we've succeeded in teaching clients skills they were once not able to perform. As a 501 c (3) non-profit organization dedicated to enhancing our clients' quality of life through innovative programs, Camp Forrest and frequent outings, Angel View relies heavily on grants and donations.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Mel Haber, who for many years has served Angel View as president of the Board of Directors, is taking a well deserved leave of absence. His thoughts are with all of Angel View's friends and supporters.

PATTI OMDAL JOINS ANGEL VIEW STAFF

Angel View welcomes Patti Omdal as Director of Administration. Formerly the Regional Administrator for the State of Washington's Department of Social and Health Services, she brings a wealth of experience to her new position.

In her role at Angel View, Patti is responsible for supervising office operations and administrative staff. She also supervises human resources, manages information technology and facility maintenance, and is helping to organize our new volunteer corps.

"Angel View has grown so much in recent years," explains Executive Director Dave Thornton, "we created a new position to handle many of our administrative tasks. Patti oversees internal organizational processes, helps manage our transportation and maintenance programs, and our day to day office operations. We are truly thrilled to have her join our team."

When asked recently what she was most surprised by, once she started working at Angel View, Patti did not hesitate. "There is a big difference between working for a public agency vs. a nonprofit," she says, laughing. "In the state environment, because of budget cuts, every day, people wanted to take resources away from us. At Angel View, it's just the opposite. It's a new experience for me to talk to so many people who want to help us. I was very happy to move to an organization so many people want to support!"

From her first days on the job, Patti has seen that giving spirit in action. She helped oversee the AGC Courtyard renovation project, accomplished by volunteer contractors. That construction project was followed by the installation of electrical upgrades and new air conditioning units at the main building, courtesy of a Desert Healthcare District grant. Between the two construction projects, she attended her first Angel View Prom, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Palm Springs.

With so much going on, there's never a dull moment. "We're making great strides in so many areas!" she adds. "I feel fortunate to have joined the staff at such an exciting time."

KCVR FEATURES ANGEL VIEW

For public TV producer/reporter/ Donna Trehwella, KCVR's "I.E. Scene" is an opportunity to meet interesting people and learn more about local organizations. So when she heard about Angel View, she immediately contacted PR Director DeAnn Lubell-Ames to set up an interview.

Donna and her boss at the station, Dr. Diane Dusick, came to Angel View for a site visit. She was so inspired by what she saw and heard she decided there was too much material for one segment. What began as an idea for a 90-second video grew into a two-part series and the promise of a third.

As part of her research, Donna interviewed staff and toured several homes. At Surnow House, she met and interviewed clients Peter Li and Brandon Stangl, who are featured in the first segment. Peter and Brandon are two of six Surnow clients who are dependent on ventilators because of the impacts of Duchenne muscular dystrophy.

The second segment features our newest program, Angel View Outreach, which assists local families whose children have disabilities, and the Angel View Day Program. In the video, Melissa Acosta, Day Program Administrator, explains that the program's primarily goal is to give clients a daily feeling of accomplishment. Clients are seen doing many of their usual Day Program activities: participating in sports, music, arts and crafts, and wheelchair gardening.

"We are so appreciative of the time Donna and Dr. Dusick spent with us!" says Executive Director Dave Thornton, "and to KCVR for helping spread the word on our mission."

Both shows originally aired on KCVR (Channel 9 in the desert) but can now be seen on Angel View's website, www.angelview.org. Click Part 1 and Part 2 under Announcements.

A LETTER FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

In June, the youngest of my four daughters graduated from high school. As I listened to the commencement speech, I was reminded of a similar occasion more than 30 years ago.

I was sitting on the bleachers at a high school football field. It was a hot day and the sun was glaring. People around me used programs to shield their eyes from the sun and fanned themselves. As one would expect, each speaker recalled events of the high school years and looked toward the future with hope.

When it was the valedictorian's turn, the young man approached the podium, said just a few words, then stopped mid-sentence. He just stood there, looking down at the papers on his podium and then out at the audience. People seemed to look up and pay more attention when he said nothing. Very quickly, the audience became uncomfortable. We were hoping at any second, he would continue.

I started to cringe as the silence continued. It seemed like an eternity. Just when we thought he'd say something, he picked up his notes, and with head down, walked across the stage and took his seat. Everyone's heart sank. The emcee awkwardly moved on to introduce the next speaker. As the event went on, all we could think about was this poor kid who needed support and encouragement.

But after a few more speeches and without an introduction, the valedictorian stood up, walked across the stage, stood at the podium and said, "Can I try this again?" The crowd burst into applause. The young man gave his speech. The audience went crazy at its conclusion. His actions spoke louder than his words.

To this day, I don't remember what he said. But I do remember the message he delivered through his actions, "Get up, try again, face your fears, people are rooting for you!"

I can honestly say I am equally inspired by the actions of many of Angel View's residents. No matter how difficult life may appear with their multiple disabilities, I've witnessed them "Get up and try again..."

It's a message of hope and determination we can all emulate.

A BETTER SUMMER VACATION

For children with disabilities, a lack of resources and suitable recreational opportunities can put a big damper on the long hot season. To help them have a more therapeutic and stimulating summer, Angel View extended its mini-grant program to cover the cost of sponsorships for activities that are able to accommodate special needs kids. Through Angel View Outreach, nearly 100 children with disabilities were recently granted scholarships so they could participate in summer activities. Outreach Program Manager Amanda Galindo worked with families throughout the desert, helping them access a variety of recreational offerings.

"We provided summer sponsorships so kids could enjoy swimming, bowling, art, martial arts and boxing programs conducted by local organizations," Galindo noted. "We also helped them cover the cost of enrolling their children in programs at Boys and Girls Clubs."

"While researching summer programs for children with disabilities, we learned very few exist!" said Executive Director Dave Thornton. "As a result, one of our ongoing goals will be to work with other local organizations to broaden kids' options."

Typically, it's all about funding since programs for special needs kids require higher staffing ratios. One example is the UCP Skills Builder program. Designed for children with cerebral palsy, autism, Down's syndrome, intellectual disabilities and epilepsy, the program helps participants build their skills in several key areas. UCP operates its Skills Builders program at Boys and Girls Clubs in several valley cities, but a lack of funding had previously stalled the camp in the Eastern Coachella Valley. Sponsorships provided by Angel View Outreach, coupled with funds from other sources, enabled the program to be offered in Mecca.

"It's so important for children with disabilities to have opportunities to have fun and be social," Thornton added. "We're thrilled we were able to lighten the load of so many families this summer."

Our Fine Dining Experience...

Hmmmmm a "fine dining" experience?

"How am I going to do that?" I asked. "You'll figure it out some way," said a staff member. Maybe ... Mr. Melvyn Haber, owner of the Ingleside Inn and the longtime president of the Angel View board? I sent Mel an email. He responded right away.

"That's a great idea" he said. I said, "Ooh." Executive Director Dave Thornton and I decided lunch was best. Working with Mel, we scheduled it...three residents (Brandon, Miguel and I) and three staff (Colleen, Victoria, Nancy and Dave Thornton).

The bus was loaded up! Nancy, our driver, got lost but not completely her fault...back seat drivers. "Hahaha..." At Melvyn's, Brandon and Miguel were in awe of the pool area, the individual cabanas and the restaurant. Dave and Mr. Haber greeted us and asked us where we would like to sit (ha! I brought my own chair!). Mr. Haber joined us for lunch.

Mr. Haber said, "Order whatever like." Brandon said, "Ooh" with a big smile. We all introduced ourselves to Mr. Haber. He had never met Brandon and Miguel.

Everyone enjoyed their food and the company was pretty good too! Haha. We spoke of family life before Angel View; Mel spoke of celebrities he's met. Nice conversations. So much food for us!

"Doggy bags please," we said. I said, "Save room for dessert!" Brandon and I ordered the chocolate bomb; Victoria had a slice of cheesecake. The chocolate bomb was awesome. We had a great time enjoying the hospitality of Mr. Haber. On the bus going home, Brandon couldn't stop talking about the experience. Miguel was smiling about his burger. I sent a thank you to Mr. Haber. "On behalf of everyone who attended, we thank you Mr. Haber..." It was truly a FINE dining experience!

An awesome high school reunion with my wonderful teacher Marti Schneider at The Elegant Bar with my two brothers (Jason Li and Steven Li), my mom (Lily Li), Anh Ly, Raul Pizarro, Robert Holguin and David Erickson. Raul, Jason and I were her students for all of our high school years. Mrs. Schneider was an awesome teacher to us. She showed us that having Muscular Dystrophy doesn't mean we can't laugh.

She broke our personalities open from being introverted and shy. She said, "Oh no. What have I done? Hahaha." The one lesson she taught me in high school that I took to heart and still follow today is "Being depressed around others will cause others to be depressed as well." Above all else, she taught me that life is better with laughter. Here's to an awesome teacher in our lives. I love you Marti Schneider!

NEW OUTDOOR THERAPY AREA COU

Clients, supporters, volunteers and staff gathered on May 16 to share the joy as representatives from Angel View and AGC Charities, Inc. cut the ribbon to open a new, wheelchair accessible, outdoor therapy area. The ceremony was the culmination of three months of work by volunteer contractors who selected Angel View for the project among other local charities. AGC Charities, Inc., with leadership by Hensel Phelps Construction Co., rebuilt a very old and relatively unusable courtyard at Angel View's Desert Hot Springs headquarters as part of its series of renovation projects known as Operation Opening Doors.

"Projects like these allow contractors an opportunity to donate their skills to make life a little easier for folks who haven't always been dealt the best hand," said Jim Clemens, chairman of Ocean City, N.J.-based Clemens Construction Co. and chairman of AGC Charities. "The easiest part of these projects is finding contractors that are willing to donate their time and services."

"All work and materials were donated to Angel View free of charge," said Dave Thornton, executive director of Angel View, whose staff prepared and hosted a picnic lunch for the contractors and other guests. "Our clients are truly blessed to have friends like AGC!"

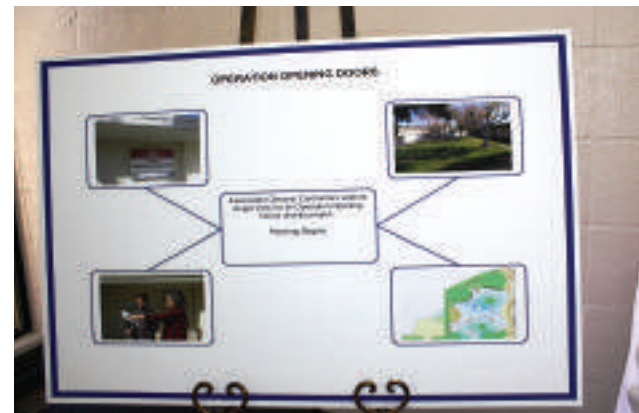

The new outdoor facility gives Angel View another opportunity to provide therapeutic services for children and adults with disabilities. In addition to renovating the courtyard, volunteer contractors replaced doors and wainscot damaged by wheelchairs and installed wainscot in a new wing.

"But that's not all," said Day Program Administrator Melissa Acosta, "in the fall, AGC Charities will also install two sunshades in the courtyard area, which are currently under construction, that will protect clients from too much sun. For the first time, our clients will be able to enjoy outdoor activities that most of us take for granted."

"Even though we all have day jobs, the contractors that have worked on this project really took it to heart," said Joe Prior, the Hensel Phelps project engineer who oversaw the project. "We really wanted to make sure this courtyard was as extraordinary as the people who Angel View serves."

In addition to Hensel Phelps, other local contractors supporting the project included ValleyCrest Landscape Companies, J&M Concrete Contractors, Alonso Painting, Granite Construction and Brady Companies. The project also received financial support from national AGC members, like Flatiron Construction Corp. and Jim and Lynne Waltze.

9TH ANNUAL ANGEL VIEW PROM A MAGICAL EVENING!

For months, there is a buildup of anticipation as caregivers help the Angel View residents shop for prom dresses and special outfits, and decide on hairstyles and accessories. Rotary Club of Palm Springs obtains the decorations, favors, music, DJs, portrait photographers, and food to create an actual prom environment.

“Each year,” says Bronstein, “we seem to add a little something more. This year, Steve Hill volunteered to strum his guitar while Angel View clients came through the double doors of the Demuth Community Center.”

The Angel View clients, who attend the prom, are pinned with a special corsage or boutonniere upon entrance. Several volunteers escort party goers to a photographer for a prom portrait. Once inside the festive, colorful prom chamber, the Angel View clients discover a fairytale setting. Representatives of the Rotary Club of Palm Springs, Angel View board and administration, along with supporters enjoy an evening of dancing and chatting with the Angel View attendees who are pushed and turned in their wheelchairs to the music and, sometimes, in their gurneys.

“The joy is evident in our clients’ smiles,” says Dave Thornton, Executive Director. “We are so appreciative of the efforts and generosity of Rotary Club of Palm Springs for these wonderful annual prom parties where our clients have the time of their lives. It’s truly magical.”

IT TAKES A VILLAGE

by Catherine Rips

GRANTS ENABLE EXPANSION OF EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS

Over the years, Angel View has cared for clients with a wide range of intellectual and physical disabilities. Our first mission was assisting children with polio. When vaccines made polio a bad memory for many in the U.S., we began to help children and young adults with developmental disabilities.

More recently, we've seen a growing need for residential care for children and adults with developmental disabilities who are considered medically fragile. To ensure we provide them with the best care possible, we've stepped up our emergency preparedness efforts.

"All of our direct care staff are certified to perform CPR and first aid," explains Bob Carl, R.N., Angel View's staff developer. "And now thanks to grant funds from the Rotary Club of Palm Springs and Edison International, we'll also be able to purchase automated external defibrillators (AEDs) and certify staff in their use."

The portable devices diagnose potentially life threatening cardiac arrhythmias and provide electrical therapy to allow the heart to reestablish an effective rhythm. Units will be placed at the Angel View Day Program and at homes where our most medically fragile clients live, like Houston House.

In addition to enabling us to purchase the AEDs, funds from the Rotary Club of Palm Desert and Edison International allowed us to send two staffers to the American Heart Association Train the Trainer program. Sarah DuShane, R.N., and Michelle Nance, who tracks the CPR certification of our direct care staff, are now qualified CPR trainers. The balance of the grant funds allowed us to purchase much needed new CPR mannequins and workbooks for all who participate.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL, THERE'S A WAY

The situations vary. Sometimes we'll get a call from a senior citizen who says, "I have no heirs but would like to leave my possessions to Angel View."

Other times, the call will be from someone younger. "I don't plan on needing to do this anytime soon," the person will say, "but I'd like to leave my household furnishings to Angel View. What do I need to do?"

Regardless of age, the process for donating personal possessions after death is always the same: the bequest must be stated in a will or trust.

Thanks to our resale stores, which sell gently used merchandise to raise funds for our programs and services, donors who name Angel View in their wills are assured their contributions will go to a great cause. It doesn't matter if the donation is a refrigerator, computer, set of dishes, or clothing – everything finds another home somewhere!

If you are interested in helping our clients through the donation of real estate, securities or personal property now or in the future, contact Catherine Rips, director of development, at info@angelview.org.

HEALTHY PLANET, HEALTHY YOU

Gifts come from many unexpected places but this one came from the planet to our clients!

As explained by Tricia Gehrlein, Regional Director for The Clinton Health Matters Initiative, "The Clinton Health Matters Initiative (CHMI) works to improve the health and well being of people across the U.S. and globally by activating individuals, communities and organizations to make meaningful contributions to the health of others. The Coachella Valley is the first community to develop a CHMI regional strategy." Angel View participated along with many other local healthcare related organizations in the development of the Coachella Valley Blueprint for Action.

One of the Bold Steps identified in the community plan is Physical Activity. The overall goal is to ensure that "All residents of the Coachella Valley have access to safe and engaging physical opportunities."

While that's a relatively easy thing to ensure for ambulatory individuals, it's a lot harder to provide to children and adults with disabilities. Enter the 2013 Palm Springs "Mayor's Healthy Planet Healthy You" grant opportunity, provided in conjunction with Desert Healthcare Foundation. The goal of the competitive grant was to address one or more of the Bold Steps outlined in the CHMI Blueprint.

Angel View submitted a proposal to hire a physical activity coordinator whose job it would be to work with various staffers to find and calendar activities that meet our clients' diverse physical capabilities. With children and adults in 19 group homes and at our Day Program, logistics will play a key role in the implementation of this program.

We're thrilled to report our project was funded (thank you again City of Palm Springs and Desert Healthcare Foundation!) and as this newsmagazine was going to press, we hired a very qualified coordinator who will be joining our team in the fall. More on this new program in the next issue.

A supporter, Frank Dimick from Palm Springs, called to say he won a teen bedroom set from Mor Furniture and wanted to donate it to Angel View. What a beautiful surprise!

WELL FARGO FUNDS ENERGY EFFICIENCY UPGRADES

Combine 19 homes and a Day Program with a desert climate and what do you get? High electric bills! Though the Southern California Edison CARE rate provides some relief for group home operators like Angel View, we're always looking for ways to save energy.

In 2012-13, thanks to grants from Jewish Federation of the Desert and Desert Healthcare District, we were able to replace air conditioning units at Joel's House, Friedman House and the Day Program with higher efficiency models. Most recently, a $5,000 grant from Wells Fargo Foundation is enabling us to continue our cost-saving upgrades.

We greatly appreciate all of our funders' support! Every dollar we don't spend on overhead goes directly to client care.

HELPING LOCAL CHILDREN

Angel View Outreach assists children with disabilities in three key ways. We provide free resources and referrals (and assistance filling out benefits forms and program applications), mileage reimbursement for "medical miles" traveled to access children's healthcare, and mini-grants. The small grants cover the cost of medical equipment, supplies and services not covered by other programs.

Every day, Program Manager Amanda Galindo meets with parents who are helped by Angel View Outreach. Here are a few of their stories:

We recently assisted a family of five from the Coachella area. All four children had Autism or an auditory processing disorder. The mother, who couldn't read or write, was a victim of domestic violence and had lost her trailer in a fire. Since her important documentation was destroyed, she was having a difficult time with the Medi-Cal application. We helped her enroll in Medi-Cal, provided her with additional resources available to low income families, and enrolled her in Angel View TRIP so she would receive mileage reimbursement for the children's healthcare appointments.

Another mom came to us for assistance with her 10 year old son who suffers from muscular dystrophy. The family had just moved to California and she was unfamiliar with the Regional Center system. We helped him get enrolled and also signed the child up for Angel View TRIP.

The parents of a 13 year old with developmental delays contacted us to see if we could assist. The child, who is non-verbal, has been seeing a therapist to advance his communication abilities. He was making progress at the therapist's office but needed a communication device so he could practice at home. His insurance company declined the device. We were able to purchase it for his family so he could continue to advance his skills.

RESALE STORE NEWS

ANGEL'S VIEW'S RETAIL REPORT

By Tracy Powers, General Manager

It's been an exciting summer—and a busy one. The April grand opening of our store on Cook Street in Palm Desert generated the best opening day sales results in our history; nearly three times our most recent store openings. And our new Wildomar store produced our second biggest grand opening day.

Set to open September 14, our third new store in six months will be located across from Sun City Palm Desert and will allow us to conveniently serve nearly 10,000 households north of Interstate 10 in Palm Desert and Indio. Sun City will bring to 16 our total number of stores. Whew! I think I could use a break.

While all this new store activity was going on, we continued to set new sales records with a nearly nine percent increase over the prior fiscal year that ended June 30, 2013.

While we were hoping for somewhat better sales figures, strong expense control helped drive our contribution to Angel View's programs higher than ever before.

Next on our growth agenda is the expansion of our Clearance Center, which just celebrated its first anniversary. The fabulous success of this new venture in a very limited space tells us we are sitting on great potential for additional sales, all meant to support services for children and adults living with disabilities.

I've said this before but know it is worth repeating: None of our success would be possible without the ongoing support of our donors. Without you, we would not be able to fill our stores with the high quality merchandise that our customers want. So please, the next time you feel the need to clean out your closet or garage, bring those gently used items to Angel View. Or if you have items too large to carry in, please give us a call. Our trucks are ready to pick up those larger donations seven days a week.

And remember . . .

"If it's not becoming to you, it should be coming to Angel View!"

NEW STORE OPENS IN WILDOMAR

Customers started lining up under an archway of balloons at the front door of the new Angel View restore in Wildomar an hour before opening. Wildomar is located off I-15 not far from Temecula and near other Angel View stores located in Hemet, Murrieta and Temecula.

On hand to lend support to Angel View resale store number 14 were Angel View General Manager Tracy Powers, Assistant General Manager Shelly Lee, District Manager Alex Burciaga and Public Relations Director DeAnn Lubell-Ames.

According to Powers, it might seem strange for an organization that prides itself on being one of the oldest and most respected charities in the Coachella Valley to want to venture 60 miles from Angel View's main hub.

"The opening of our Wildomar store, our fourth store in Western Riverside County, helps build funding for Angel View's program, not just by adding sales revenue, but also by creating operating efficiencies," Powers said. "For example, our home pickup trucks are already on the road in the Hemet, Temecula and Murrieta areas. They will be more productive by having an additional drop-off location nearby. And, our existing advertising program already covers the Wildomar area."

After the ribbon cutting ceremony and the opening of the doors, the crowd rushed in to find their bargains and treasures including furnishings, household goods, clothing, electronics, jewelry, and much more.

THE SERVICES WE PROVIDE

Angel View provides a full range of services for children and adults with disabilities. We provide 24-hour nursing services in group-homes that emulate a family environment. In addition, we operate a Congregate Living Health Facility for ventilator dependent clients with muscular dystrophy, a weekday Day Program for developmentally disabled adults, Angel View Outreach for local children with disabilities and Camp Forrest, our fully handicapped accessible summer camp. Because Angel View exists, 100% of the local residents who need our services have them available without leaving the Palm Springs area. Angel View's mission, and our forte, is helping children and adults with disabilities reach their maximum potential.

Helping children and adults with developmental disabilities is not just our business, it is our passion! All our efforts are directed toward helping them acquire the behaviors they need to function with as much independence and self-determination as possible.
